Mr. William J. Casey
Director
Central Intelligence Agency
Washington, D.C. 20505

Dear Bill:

On the evening of January 14 and during the 15th, the Defense Department will sponsor a conference at the National Defense University on "Low-Intensity Warfare."

Cap will give the keynote speech at the dinner; George Shultz will give the luncheon talk; Jeane Kirkpatrick agreed to talk on the Soviet role, and we have Ted Koppel chair a panel on U.S. domestic aspects. The conference will be on-the-record with media present. An agenda is attached.

The idea of the conference is to raise the awareness in Congress and the public about the importance of "small-scale" warfare in many regions with the Soviets or their surrogates supporting one side. In such cases as El Salvador or Thailand, the U.S. is providing security assistance; in such cases as Nicaragua, we seek to help the freedom fighters.

→ There will be over 100 invitees, mostly governmental and private experts on counterterrorism, special operations, and related military subjects. People from your agency have been invited. I wanted you to be fully informed about the purpose and thrust of this conference, and if you have any concerns, we can talk about them when I see you on Thursday, 3 January.

Monday 6
I hope your schedule will permit you to attend the dinner on 14 January; you will be receiving a formal invitation from Cap.

Sincerely,

Fred
Fred C. Ikle
